THE MODEL DAIRY

The great mystery of where the cream for our coffee comes from is unraveled.

Down on the dear old farm contented cows give the most milk. They golf and play leap frog from green to green. Under the trees they play billiards and swing in hammocks swayed by the breeze. With care free abandon they spend their time in enjoyment. On this day the Farmer upon looking at his ankle-watch observes it is milking time and wireless telephones the cow operator on the hill by the pasture. She receives the message and amplifies the orders to report for milking, by blowing a horn. Out of the hammocks, from the billiard tables and away from the golf links hustle the contented cows straightway they make for the barn and enter their stalls. Soon the Farmer is busily engaged in milking. An inquisitive Cat peeks in through the open door and perceives the agrarian at work. Licking his chops the Cat walks stealthily into the barn. When the Farmer leaves a cow and proceeds to the next, the Cat sneaks up and puts a pail to be filled. He tries various methods which infuriate the animal. She kicks him out of the building and laughs merrily at her own cleverness.

His job completed the Farmer comes out with a can in one hand, a bucket in the other and a pitcher balanced upon his head. To save carrying charges, the milk is pumped to the city. So the Farmer pours his load of milk into the pump. A goat provides the tread-mill power to send the fluid to its destination. For economy's sake the pipe line is put to many uses--the kids use it to hang their rope swings on, it serves as roosts for the chickens and bottles are hung from the line as a self-service for the pigs. After all the milk is poured into the pump, the Farmer boards his Nice

Choice auto and speeds to the City Milk Station. Here the cream is separated from the ~~skim~~ milk by centrifugal force. Cheese is made from the cream and as the cakes roll out from the churn, the Farmer shoots holes in them. To give the cheese strength, they are taken out on the green and put through setting up exercises. Skim milk is watered to take care of the overhead. The Farmer is assisted by his cat who labels the bottles cream. With all the milk prepared for consumption, the Milkman makes his early morning delivery of the previous day's product. Mr. and Mrs. Really-Wed are awakened by the Milkman, Mrs. thinks she hears a burglar. Mr. looks out and finds it is only the milkman, whereupon his wife jokingly retorts that there's no difference in the men. Thus it appears from out inside views of the Model Dairy that the bottle on the doorstep labeled cream is often but skim milk.

Moral- "Things are seldom what they seem-- Skim milk often sells for Cream."
